There must be a real desire to regain good health and willingness to be persistent, consistent, and patient in achieving it.

The functioning of the extremities and what are called the locomotor faculties are not entirely dependent upon the brain. If balance between the circulatory, sympathetic, and locomotive centers are brought back to a balance full function can be restored.

Therapies aimed to: Prevent circulation from progressing to a more toxic condition; Eliminate poisons; Remove pressures on sympathetic and locomotory centers; Aid the body to rebuild

Therapy:

- Enlightened Athletics Dietary Protocol (modifying to eat lightly)
- Enemas - beginning with three on the first day and daily thereafter
- Osteopathic treatment - gently first and more vigorous progressively
- Hot Epsom salt packs
- Massage spine and extremities (massage away from head toward extremities)
